I oppose this project because the adverse health effects of diesel particulate pollution from 41 million square feet of warehousing trucks are not fully known. Research has been made available that has linked pollution during pregnancy to increased autism risk. The majestic mountains that surround our city keep pollution trapped here. Why has no alternative site that is not surrounded by mountains been identified with a correct map?

I don't think the employment numbers are correct. The previous project from which is Sketchers promised 2500 jobs, but the building was only designed for 1000. It is so modern and electronically advanced. Warehouse electronics are just like technology, it's outdated almost as soon as it's finished. That means that each new building constructed will have fewer employees than the one before. How can the City or developer properly estimate the number of jobs? How can the residents trust the developer when they continue to falsify employment numbers?

Sincerely
